Title: Rearranging Train Cars in Railroad Yards
Author: Peter Widmayer

Abstract

While sorting keys in a computer has been studied extensively in computer science, sorting of physical items in a variety of settings has received less attention. From among the latter problem class, we discuss problems of sorting cars of freight trains in rail yards. We survey the state of the field and show some connections between railroad car sorting and classical algorithmic problems.